As a member, you have a Collective Agreement that is negotiated by a bargaining committee, who is supported by skilled, trained and experienced staff negotiators. Unifor is very proud of our strong record of negotiating good collective agreements.

Your Collective Agreement covers your wages, benefits, hours of work and other terms and conditions, including your rights as a worker. This Agreement is a legal contract and your employer must follow it.

In your workplace there is a union steward. Your union steward is a trained member who has volunteered to help you and your co-workers and they ensure enforcement of your Collective Agreement. If you have any questions, make sure to ask your union steward or a member of the Local Executive.

To ensure you know your rights and benefits please read your Collective Agreement.

You can find a copy of your Collective Agreement online at: _____
